WAGNER-NEITSCH

The marriage of Miss Lydia Wagner and Mr. Erwin Neitsch was solemnized Sunday afternoon at Immanuel Lutheran church with Rev. Fischer reading the impressive double ring service. The decorations were confined to the altar space and consisted of beautiful ferns, palms and tall baskets of zinnias, cannas and altheas in pink and white, the color scheme of the occasion.

Just before the service, Miss Ida Neumann sang as a solo the "Wedding Song" from Polack, the theme of which is found in Ruth 1: 16, 17: "Whither thou goest I will go and where thou lodgest, I will lodge." Truly a beautiful sentiment. Prof. Dube presided at the organ and his rendition as accompanist and of the music through the entire ceremony was of the best.

Promptly at three o'clock strains of Lohengrin's wedding March played softly announced the entrance of the bridal party led by Messrs Ed. Schumann and E. R. Frosch, followed by Miss Minnie Neitsch and Miss Louise Wagner, both attired in attractive shades of rose. The little flower girl was Eleanor Frosch, dainty in pink, held a basket of rose petals, scattering them along the pathway of the bride and groom. Little Lloyd Schumann, attired in white, held a single pink rose containing the rings.

Murmurs of "how sweet," "how pretty," could be heard throughout the procession and a silence as the bridal couple passed, then there burst forth whispers of admiration for Miss Lydia was beautiful in her wedding attire; her gown of pink crepe satin, her veil of pink tulle attached to her head-dress worn in cap fashion, of real lace, presented a charming picture holding a shower bouquet of pink rosebuds and fern. Through the ceremony Prof. Dube played "Humoresque" by Ira B. Wilson.

Many friends and relatives were present, as Miss Lydia and Erwin were loved by all. She has been employed as a most courteous clerk in the Farmers Supply Co. for a number of years while Erwin is one of the young worthy business men of Giddings. They left for Port Arthur on their honeymoon, after which they will make their home in Giddings.

The News joins their many friends in wishing them a long and happy life.
